

A majority of the time we can do better when we know better and here's how;

Rebel against the pace and bars currently set and respect each and every person's creative and mental capacity, because that's how we safeguard our ecosystem, both socially and environmentally.

Unlearn a few things and approach them with fresh eyes; let's increase our consciousness when creating things we and others will love, respect production and labour, and wait a little while. Why all the rush?

Let's lean on each other a little more and ensure those at the back are pushed all the way to the front. Stop all the stank attitudes and demi-god complexes; treat people like human beings and let's ensure diversity isn't hot on our lips for one season.

Nothing deserves to have a linear life. Think big, think cyclical. Give yourself more time to think. Be transparent, be conscious, be ethical, be fair.

Share your ideas, be counter-cultural. Let's restore what we've already broken and build an environment where we aren't afraid to fail, but are ever so thankful for the lesson.

We deserve spaces that recognise creativity as the strongest asset and people as the biggest and most precious resource. Community is key, so fall into one.
